"Golgotha" at Methodist Church. The City of Kingston is to be given another opportunity to see the tremendous spectacle "Golgotha," on Sunday night at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, when Leon Booth of Brooklyn brings this great talking motion picture. This great drama dealing with the last week of our Lord's life, shows such scenes as his triumphal entry into Jerusalem, the driving of the merchants from the Temple, the fears and plots of the Sanhedrin, the betrayal by Judas Iscariot, the Last Supper, the Garden of Gethsemane, his trial and crucifixion, and his last messages to his disciples after his resurrection. This is a talking picture and it has an accompanying musical score especially arranged by Jacques Ibert, which is very beautiful. The general public is cordially invited. Admission is free, though an offering will be received to defray expenses. The service will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Silversmith Paul Revere. Although examples of silver made by Paul Revere were among the first sought after by collectors, his activities in the American Revolution and his versatility in other fields have somewhat overshadowed his achievements as a silversmith. Much picturesque information was gathered about Patriot Paul following Longfellow's stirring recital of his midnight ride.

In addition to his craft as silversmith, he was one of our first engravers of copperplate prints and almost the first American industrialist in the production of copper and brass, says the American Collector. Born in Boston, 1735, during his eighty-three years of life, his natural facility was so marked that Revere, the silversmith, was sometimes subordinated to his other accomplishments. Yet he had done nothing else but cleve to the trade learned from his Huguenot father, he would still be one of the most important American workers in silver. In 1754, the same year that Chippendale published his book of furniture designs, the elder Revere died and Paul, a journeyman at nineteen, took over the management of this long-established shop. From then until about 1800, when he largely forsok silversmaking for his copper manufacturing enterprises, Paul Revere was an active and prolific silversmith.

From 1774 to 1780 he played his part in the Revolution by acting as courier for Massachusetts, printing paper money for the Continental congress, repairing spiked cannon abandoned by the British and serving as lieutenant colonel of an artillery regiment. Then he returned to his original occupation, expanding it to include operation of what he termed a "hardware shop." In it he sold everything from gold jewelry to spectacles and shoe buckles and, of course, table silver and candlesticks. Much of this stock in trade was undoubtedly the product of his own skill and that of his workmen.

The town of Olive for the second time within a few years has its candidates for the superintendency of two automobile dealers. The men, Lemuel DuBols and Alonzo Haver, also are both residents of Ashokan and have previously run for supervisor.

Lewis G. Knapp's recently completed residence, painted white, presents a pleasingly attractive appearance as viewed from the north boulevard. The building is situated near the Feeny homestead on the Boiceville hill road.

Robert Hogan and family of Kingston were callers Sunday at the home of George Hogan and Mrs. Julia Hogan. "Rob" is a well-known who participated in several battles in France.

Clarence Rose, local carpenter and builder, is erecting a garage for C. G. Fuller at the Fullers' Mountain Laurel Lodge on the north boulevard.

Robert Secor, a former resident, came up from Kingston for a week-end visit to his Shokan bungalow.

But there is at least one man who is decidedly in favor of the change. He is K. D. Dock, good-natured operator of the town's gasoline station and restaurant.

"This ought to put 'Friends on the map,'" he said. "It's the first time in West Virginia's history that all women have been elected."

Farmers report that very few gray squirrels have been seen in the woods and fields back of Shokan thus far in the fall. One farmer says that he has not seen a squirrel in several weeks, though the years ago at this time the animals were swarming his corn field. As for rabbits, the hunters will doubtless find them unusually numerous, though casual observers seldom run across one during the daytime.

Mrs. Neil Windrum, vice-chairman of the Shokan Home Bureau, on Tuesday attended a luncheon of Home Bureau Chairmen at the House in the Garden, Stone Ridge.

Another Olive auction sale is scheduled for Saturday noon, at the home of Frank Dyer near Samsonville. The auctioneer for this sale is John Kelder.

Miss Hazel Bell is picking a fine crop of Concord grapes from her home vineyard in the village center.

October 7, 1830, the marriage took place of John G. Eckert to Venus Rosa, both of the town of Olive. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Richard L. Shurtler, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church. The groom was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Eckert and his bride was a highly esteemed young woman of the South Olive section. Children of the Kingston and Harry Eckert of Margaretville. Another wedding ceremony performed by Domine Shurtler on this date was that which united E. B. Shurtler of Hillsdale, N. J., to Kittle E. Lawson of West Hurley.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeill and two small daughters have returned to their home in New Rochelle after having visited Mrs. McNeill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Matland. Miss Helen Matland, who spent the summer here, returned to the city with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Winchell, who for a year have occupied the house belonging to Mrs. Ella Secor of Kingston, removed to Napanoch Friday. Mr. Winchell is employed by the Board of Water Supply on the reservoir project at Lackawack. The couple have many friends in the twin villages who regret their change of residence.

Mrs. Catherine McKenney returned to her home in Boston Sunday after having been the guest for several weeks of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf. The trip was made in company with the Elmendorfs and the Misses Ann and Betty Gruber, Kingston friends of the family.

The town of Olive for the second time within a few years has its candidates for the superintendency of two automobile dealers. The men, Lemuel DuBols and Alonzo Haver, also are both residents of Ashokan and have previously run for supervisor.

Lewis G. Knapp's recently completed residence, painted white, presents a pleasingly attractive appearance as viewed from the north boulevard. The building is situated near the Feeny homestead on the Boiceville hill road.

Robert Hogan and family of Kingston were callers Sunday at the home of George Hogan and Mrs. Julia Hogan. "Rob" is a well-known who participated in several battles in France.

Paul James of the corner store has been in New York city several days.

An addition has been made to the rear of Joseph Reilly's summer home in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olsen of Brooklyn have terminated their lease on one of the Winchells village bungalows which they had occupied as a country home during the past year.

Mrs. Ella Secor and daughter, Elsie, of Kingston were callers in Shokan Sunday.

Clarence Rose, local carpenter and builder, is erecting a garage for C. G. Fuller at the Fullers' Mountain Laurel Lodge on the north boulevard.

Robert Secor, a former resident, came up from Kingston for a week-end visit to his Shokan bungalow.

But there is at least one man who is decidedly in favor of the change. He is K. D. Dock, good-natured operator of the town's gasoline station and restaurant.

"This ought to put 'Friends on the map,'" he said. "

BEN RHYMER BUILDS HUGE SERVICE TRUCK.

Ben Rhymer, the man who in years past represented Kingston in the Hudson river outdoor races, has completed work on the construction of a huge service truck, or wrecker, designed to haul the heaviest trucks or busses from ditches and smash-ups.

The new wrecker is mounted on an International truck chassis and the crane is electrically welded from plans drawn by Mr. Rhymer. The leverage on the new machine is so distributed that there is virtually no limit to the pull that can be exerted, and Ben claims that his machine can lift from 75 to 100 tons with ease.

History of The RED CROSS "A Friend In Need"

Human treatment of battle wounded and prisoners of war is accepted by our civilization today so much as a matter of course that many of our citizens do not realize that only the period since 1864 spans the change from sheer barbarism on the battlefield to the protection now granted by the Red Cross flag.

In the pages of ancient and medieval history are recorded some instances of care and attention to sick and wounded soldiers.

Haldor the Dane, in the year 1000, assembled the women of her household on the eve of a battle and sent them out to bind the wounds of the fallen soldiers while she attended the wounded enemy chieftain. This incident of the Nordic chieftainess is the first recorded manifestation of compassion and mercy in war.

The Knights of St. John or the Knights Hospitallers of the Crusades, however, presented the first organized effort to alleviate the sufferings of battle wounded. Dating from 1023, the Knights first establish hospitals in Jerusalem. This military order was afterward suppressed, but in the Middle Ages was revived as a charitable institution with special provisions for tending the sick and wounded in war.

Much closer to the Red Cross of today was the work done by Florence Nightingale for the sick and wounded of the English army during the Crimean War. Following an exposure in the press of intolerable conditions of the wounded in Crimea, Miss Nightingale and 38 nurses, in October, 1854, left London for Scutari. She had the authority of the Secretary of State for War for her mission. There she was given the rank of Brigadier General, and with her nurses she established a hospital under sanitary conditions. Because of her work there and later in establishing nursing standards, she has become the nurse heroine of the world. Florence Nightingale was an Englishwoman, born in 1820 and died in 1910.

It remained however, for Jean Henri Dunant, a citizen of Switzerland, who lived the life of an unassuming gentleman and died in obscurity, to give to the world the epoch-making idea which grew into the greatest organization of the ages—the Red Cross.

No biographies have been written about this man who conceived an idea that has enrolled 62 nations under one banner—in unflinching harmony that has lasted more than 75 years. Mention of his name is found here and there in the English encyclopedias. He received one-half of the first Nobel peace award. There exists no monument in stone to his memory. No grave marks his resting place, because his ashes were scattered to the winds in Zurich, following his death in Switzerland on October 30, 1910, in the 82nd year of his life.

But every Red Cross flag—the white flag with the brilliant red cross emblazoned upon it—a symbol that flies around the world, is a symbol in recognition of Dunant's memory, because in his honor the flag of his native Switzerland, red with white cross, was reserved to make the flag of the International Red Cross.

Dunant first became known to continental Europe when he published a small volume entitled, "Un Souvenir de Solferino." It contained a brilliant and striking description of a great battle, written from the point of view of a non-combatant humanitarian. The book became one of the best sellers of the years, succeeding its publication in 1862, and went into eight editions in French and was translated into virtually every tongue of the civilized world in the following decade.

It was in June, 1859, while leisurely traveling through Lombardy, that the young Swiss, whose modest fortune enabled him to devote himself to charitable works, came within the region of the collision of the armies of Austria and the Franco-Sardinian forces. The battle occurred on the hill of Solferino, south of Lake Garda. Dunant assembled neighborhood girls and women to aid him in visiting the battlefields and succoring the soldiers dying of wounds, thirst, and exposure. For three days they carried on this work. Dunant, realizing the futility of their efforts, finally managed to reach Napoleon III, who was in personal command of his troops. His mission so impressed the young emperor that he consented to release all Austrian medical men who had been taken prisoners, so that they might return with Dunant to treat the wounded.

Thus in the span of a week's time young Dunant had accomplished one of the outstanding achievements since the days of chivalry—recognition of the principle that medical men were neutral in the battle zone and should treat the enemy wounded as well as their own nationals. Previous to this battle, while every nation possessed a flag of its own for field hospitals, it was not generally recognized by the enemy, which carried off ambulances, cut down the medical staff while they treated the wounded, and dispatched the dying soldier, or left him to linger where he fell.

Formation of Plans

Returning to his home in Geneva, Dunant later wrote his impressions of those terrible weeks, and in conclusion urged the formation of voluntary societies, whose aim should be to succor the wounded in time of war, and to give aid in epidemics or national disasters in time of peace. So in 1862 were first outlined the principles and purposes found today in the articles of the various Red Cross societies of the world.

A group of Swiss, friends of Dunant, first interested themselves in his plan. Later he laid it before Prince Frederick of Germany, (afterward Kaiser Wilhelm I), the Emperor of Austria, the King of Sardinia, and Napoleon III. In 1863 the first international conference in Geneva was called, and 15 nations were represented. A number of formal resolutions were adopted but no formal action was taken. In August 1864, another meeting was called and 13 European nations and the United States were represented—but the latter, unofficially. This conference drew up the famous articles now known as the Treaty of Geneva. The immediate signers were France, Switzerland, Belgium, Netherlands, Italy, Norway, Denmark, Spain and Baden.

At this conference the United States was represented by George C. Fogg, the American minister to Switzerland, and Charles S. P. Bowles, European agent of Sanitary Commission. They were designated by President Lincoln in response to a personal letter from Dunant. The Civil War was being fought in the United States and public-spirited men and women had created the voluntary Sanitary Commission which served in some measure to hospitalize the wounded federal troops, to give them comfort, provide women nurses, and to raise funds to pay for this work. But Fogg and Bowles had no authority to do other than report on the new Red Cross treaties.

Interest At Home

It was 17 years between the first gathering at Geneva in 1864 and the first governmental recognition in the United States of the purposes of the Red Cross. During these years several ardent but futile efforts were made to obtain the approval in Washington of this international humanitarian ideal. Dr. Henry W. Bellows became interested and in 1866 organized the "American Association for Relief of Misery of Battlefields," using the Red Cross insignia; but several successive Secretaries of State recommended against accession to the treaty, believing the United States should be kept aloof from general treaties.

Clara Barton, a former school teacher from New England, who was one of the first women clerks employed by the Government in Washington, had done a great deal of volunteer service for troops passing through the national capital, and had even penetrated to nearby battlefields with her kindly ministrations to the wounded. With the close of hostilities she greatly added prisoners of war returning home, located the missing, and identified graves. Ill health caused her to journey to Europe in 1869, and while visiting friends in Geneva, she first became acquainted with the Red Cross and the men who had been instrumental in bringing about the Geneva convention.

She received a commission to urge the United States to join the Red Cross treaty, but upon her return she found that President Grant's administration was opposed to it. Opposition continued through President Hayes' administration, but under President Garfield she received first encouragement when the new Secretary of State, James G. Blaine, wrote her on May 21, 1881, informing her that he would recommend adherence.

Miss Barton brought a group of friends in Washington together at her home that very evening, and organized the Association of the American Red Cross. Incorporation papers were filed in the District of Columbia July 1, with 50 prominent persons listed as signers of its constitution. The tragic death, by assassination, of President Garfield, interfered with plans for prompt recognition by the government.

First American Unit

Notwithstanding this momentary setback, Miss Barton forged ahead with her plans and in the summer of 1881 she succeeded in forming the first local Red Cross unit in Danville, N. Y., where she was sojourning while recuperating from illness. The organization was held on August 22 and less than a month later the infant society was giving the first Red Cross relief in disaster. Forest fires swept the great woods in Michigan and Miss Barton's Danville unit sent food, clothing and supplies to the homeless families. Danville did not stand alone in this effort although it did take the initiative. Citizens of Rochester asked Miss Barton to establish a society, and the third unit was promptly organized in Syracuse. In money and materials, these three first organizations sent $30,000 in relief to the victims of the forest fires.

In President Arthur's message to Congress on December 6, 1881, he recommended adherence to the Treaty of Geneva, and this became an actuality on March 1, 1882, when the president, with the consent of the Senate, signed the Geneva Treaty. The Swiss Federation accepted the signature on June 9, and on July 26 the president issued a proclamation.

Miss Barton, the "Mother of the American Red Cross," remained as its president until its reorganization under a new Congressional Charter in 1905, and died in Washington on April 12, 1912, at the age of 91 years.

In the years that have followed the organization of the American Red Cross, thousands of helpless individuals who have received aid through the Red Cross, have praised the name of Clara Barton, and the organization itself with its white banner with the red cross emblazoned on it, is a fitting monument to the tireless efforts of a woman who worked in the interests of humanity.

PALIST OPENS MODERN PHARMACY ON BROADWAY

Today marks the opening of a new, modern pharmacy at 642 Broadway under the personal management of John J. Palist, the son of Joseph Palist, local fruit dealer.

The manager and owner of the new store was born in Kingston and received his education at Kingston High School, graduating in the class of 1926. He studied pharmacy at Fordham University School of Pharmacy and graduated from the New York school in 1930. For the past seven years, Mr. Palist has been employed in the various drug stores in Kingston as an assistant pharmacist.

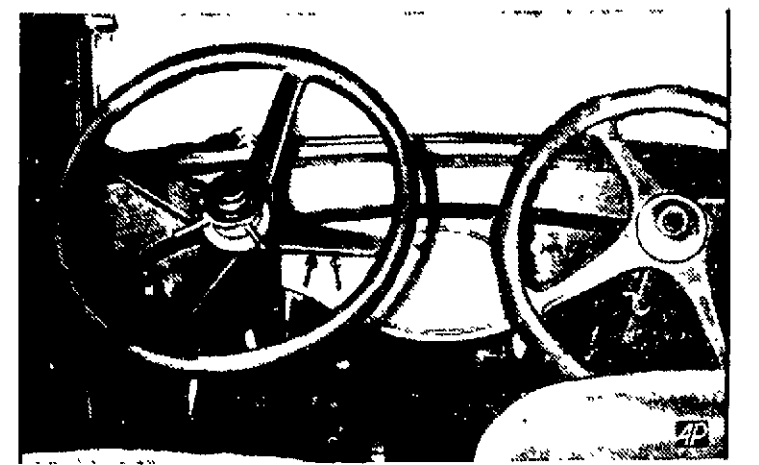

The Blackstone Pharmacy, the name of the new store, is located in the center of a block of new stores constructed in Kingston during the past three months, and its opening today adds another up-to-the-minute, modern store to the city's enterprises.

Library Closed Tuesday

The Kingston City Library will be closed on Tuesday, October 12, Columbus Day.

Back-Seat Drivers Get Front-Seat Job

If keeping the back-seat driver busy will put an end to that machine-axe menace, then a Kaukauna, Wis., businessman has solved the problem. He has installed an extra steering wheel which gives the wife or other back-seater an opportunity to climb into the front seat and do her or his own maneuvering. The little detail of connecting the extra wheel to the steering knuckle was overlooked... but quite intentionally.

IT COST ME PLENTY Not TO BORROW

My insurance premium was due but I let the policy lapse because I was pressed for cash—and I didn't like to borrow money. One night a fire broke out—we were lucky to escape, but everything we spent years in buying went up in smoke. That time it cost me plenty not to borrow.

Before borrowing... consider the value of a loan to you. Know what it costs to borrow—and what it might cost not to borrow.

WHERE WAS THE JUDGE?

Mayor C. J. Heislman in his opening campaign speech the other evening asked pertinently
 "Where was Judge Culliton at the time the Junior high school question was under discussion?" and that is a question that the judge has so far failed to answer, although he has spoken at considerable length criticizing the acts of the administration on the school question. It is not amiss also to ask the judge where he was during the public hearings on the railroad crossing elimination problem.
 It is possible that the judge in trying to evolve issues out of thin air jumped to the hasty conclusion that the school question and the railroad elimination problem would make handy planks, without realizing that the voters would later be asking him where he was during the discussions of the questions.

Having no real issue naturally the judge has to have something to talk about. While he is orating about affairs in which he never took an active interest until he decided to be the candidate for mayor, the city administration is functioning as usual, solving every day problems as they arise and carrying out the policy of giving the city an efficient administration with a tax rate that will not prove too heavy a burden on the taxpayers.

Some one pitifully said many years ago that talk was cheap.
 Yes talk is cheap, but a city government cannot be run on wind alone. It needs more than promises and oratory to conduct a city, making it a better place in which to live. As Philip Elting, Republican county chairman, said at the opening meeting of the Republican Club the city has been given the finest business administration in its history. Results speak for themselves. The record is open What has been written is written and cannot be erased.

THE ALBERTA PRESS

Freedom of the press is seriously threatened now in the Canadian province of Alberta, which has been kept upset for the last couple of years by its maverick "social credit" government. A press control bill introduced in the legislature would compel newspapers, at the request of the provincial government, to disclose the sources of their information and the names of all writers of editorials, articles and news items. The government would also have authority to suspend publication of newspapers not obeying this law, and to fine the publishers.

In wise hands, tolerant of the traditional freedom of the British press, such a law might be endurable in time of great public stress and danger. But it would so obviously be liable to abuse at any time for political purposes, and in petty and tyrannical ways, that the spirit of press freedom would be gone. It is hardly possible that the British race, which created freedom of the press, and from which our own press freedom is derived, will endure such a threat to its liberties.

YANK-JAP DEADLOCK

The relations of the United States and Japan are growing rather serious. A recent dispatch from Washington said the governments of the two countries had "reached a diplomatic deadlock over the question of responsibility for injury to Americans and American property in China."
 Our government has warned Japan repeatedly that it will hold that country accountable for damage resulting from its military operations. The Tokyo government refuses to acknowledge liability.

 The Tokyo attitude assumes that the Japanese army has a right to do what it is doing in China. The American attitude assumes that its peaceful citizens have a right to do what they are doing, living and transacting peaceful business in China in accordance with the laws of nations, and not to suffer violence there from intruding Japanese.

These attitudes are irreconcilable. If Japan continues her aggressive policy we must either fight or leave the field to her.
 Americans are determined not to be dragged into the war. But that will not be the end of the story. Japan, in many ways, will pay a severe and lasting penalty for such rash procedure.

PIANIST IN POLITICS

Paderewski, world-famous pianist and Polish patriot, closed his piano during the World War to serve his country in government.
 In 1919 he retired from public life to rest and regain his health.
 Now he is returning to politics.
 "Having withdrawn from active life in Poland," explains Paderewski, "where further work was made impossible for me, I left with all loyalty a free hand to those who came into power after me. I did not point out their errors. I did not rejoice at news of their failure. On the contrary, I waited patiently for positive results of the work of my successors. Alas, however, I waited in vain. In Poland things are constantly getting worse. The splitting up of the community into camps which are fighting one another is becoming more and more apparent and threatens to become a permanent condition. So I came to the conviction that it would be wrong for me to remain silent longer."

He issued a manifesto urging Poles to resist Fascism. It was reprinted by the government, but not before it had been widely read. Paderewski, like the late Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, is a true patriot who puts his country's welfare first, his own success and fame last. It looks now as if his work in the war years and immediately after may have been in vain. The people have been following false leaders.

Two's Company

The Characters
 Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair.
 Honey, Nina's plump, youthful mother, brings home a new husband.
 Richard, Nina's stepfather, is charming, poised, dark-haired, well-tailored and Honey's junior by 10 years.
 David, a young auto salesman, meets Nina at a party he crashed and drives her home. He has copper hair and an engaging manner.
 Cordelia, Nina's closest friend.

Chapter S.x

David 'Gets It' Wrong

AS NINA passed the telephone in the hall, it rang and she lifted the receiver.
 It was David Day.
 "Oh, hello David. How's Button?"
 "He's fine. . . and I'm very well too, thank you for asking."
 After all the serious thoughts that had been filling her brain, his foolishness was refreshing—like a drink of cool water, on a hot day.
 She said: "Oh, I'm splendid, thanks, since you ask."

David's foolishness was refreshing—like cool water on a hot day.

"Good. And now that our healths are an established fact, do you still want us to call this afternoon?"
 "You and Button? Will you tell him to keep a civil tongue in his head? . . . Oh, listen, David, I just thought . . . could you make it some other day? A million things have come up since I saw you."
 She didn't feel like broadcasting Honey's news, without asking her.
 He interrupted: "Can't I be one of them?"
 But she said she was afraid not.
 "O. K. I get it, P. I. get it."
 "Don't be a sap, David."
 "I—won't."
 "Give me a ring tomorrow?"
 "Oh, sure. Sure."
 "David."
 But he had said: "Goodbye," and hung up.
 Nina stood, frowning, for a minute, and then continued on her way.

No Diet, No Dye

HONEY was sitting propped up in her double bed, like a radiant white and gold, like a Christmas tree angel.
 Nina felt a little embarrassed.
 Honey was 44. She kept her hair its original flaxen color with some sort of an egg shampoo; and she had occasional facials, when she was worn out from running around not doing much of anything . . . but that was all she did to herself. Her skin was pink and smooth, but when you looked at it closely you could see definite little wrinkles under her blue eyes.
 There was a distinct line, too, just under the point of her chin, with fullness below . . . but somehow, on Honey, it only looked cunning.
 She wore clothes that were inclined to be frilly, but in perfectly good taste for a woman of 44, and she was the youngest looking thing you ever laid your eyes on.
 She was the despair of those of her friends who dieted, and dyed and made themselves up into a semblance of youth. Hers came from within . . . and they couldn't compete with that.
 "Darling! Come over here and sit down. I'm glad we're going to have a minute alone together."
 So was Nina.
 And then her mother said a very extraordinary thing . . . for her.
 "You know, baby, I have the broadly, because Honey had apparently exhibited enough new qualities for one morning, and was back to normal again.

It Was A Madhouse

SHE began to scribble down lists of things that had to be done before she left, on the backs of envelopes that had come in the morning's mail; and then she said:
 "Oh, let's clear away this mess!"
 and tore them all up, and couldn't remember what she had written.
 She made little ineffectual motions with her soft, plump hands, and begged Nina to help her.

The papers and lists of friends to be notified, and last minute shoppings . . . The whole day went like that. It was a madhouse.
 Telephone calls, and flowers and bundles, and reporters, and more telephone calls.
 Cordelia had whooped with excitement over the wire, and promised to come in to lunch the next day, when the honeymoons were off, and things would be quieter.

When Nina had waved her last wave at the night train for Hot Springs, she sighed a sigh of the most devastating fatigue, and returned to a house that was a heaven of calm.

Cordelia Thorpe was a year older than Nina. She was as dark as her friend was fair, and this year she had gone in for a soft wavy bang across her white forehead.
 In tableaux and fancy fashion shows, wherever it was possible, they were exploited as a team—the perfect complement, one for the other. Nina seemed doomed to Bride roles, and Ice Maidens; while Cordelia had been Maid of Honor, and Queen of the Night, so many times that she didn't even have to go to rehearsals.

In their debutante year, they had usually called up and found out what the other was wearing, so as to go well together; but they were pretty sick of it now, and of compliments, too. That was probably one of the reasons why Nina had liked David so—instinctively, because he had been rude to her, for a change. And, by the way, how was he? He hadn't phoned.

Helps For Housewives

Grapes are very perishable. Do not try to break the bunches apart. Cut them with scissors.

Dip the tops of gift bottles of fruit and vegetable juices in bright-colored sealing wax.

Chilled soups require more seasonings than hot soups. Adding a slice of lemon to each serving helps.

Before adding batter to an ungreased cake pan rub the pan well with a cloth—to make the surface smooth. That will make it much easier to remove the cake.

Water at drinking temperature makes an effective remover for grease or grape juice stains. It should be applied as soon as possible.

If kitchen knives are to be kept sharp they must be stored properly. Fit them into a grooved box. Knives become dull by rubbing against other articles.

For a quick dessert cut cupcakes through the middle, cover the lower half with sliced peaches, replace the tops and cover with whipped cream. A little coconut may be mixed with the whipped cream.

Fill halves of hard-cooked eggs with a tart sauce or relish. Then outline salad, chop or fish platters with the cases. The leftover egg yolks may be used in creamed dishes.

It's better to have several pairs of inexpensive scissors in the household—rather than one expensive pair kept in mother's sewing box. They may be hung on hooks in various places in the kitchen or bathroom.

Beauty

Make-Up's A Matter Of Harmony, With Your Eyes Setting The Key

COLORING LIDS.

LIPS, AND.

CHEEKS TO STRESS EYES.

By BETTY CLARKE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

There's a new theory on make-up. Not particularly new, when you come to think of it, for cosmeticians for some time have been telling plain women to play up their eyes if they would be attractive.

But a New York salon has evolved a definite new technique for matching make-up to the eyes. All make-up, they say, from eye shadow to powder and rouge, should be chosen in a harmonious scheme to accentuate the color of the eyes.

A Tip From Clothes

It's the same principle on which clever women match their clothes to their eyes. Blues and blue-greens for blue-eyed women, rusts, browns and tans for brown-eyed individuals.

When it comes to make-up, the beauty salon does the same thing. Blue-eyed women need make-up tinted to match the blue of the iris. Eye-shadow should be blue, lipstick red with a purple cast, powder also with a bluish overtone, rouge on the purple side.

Find Your Recipe

Here's the color scheme for the rest of the feminine world:

Gray eyes—(possessed by lots of women, by the way, and not to be confused with blue eyes)—Pastel make-up, featuring powder with plenty of pink in it, a violet-pink lipstick, light gray eye-shadow, and definitely pink rouge.

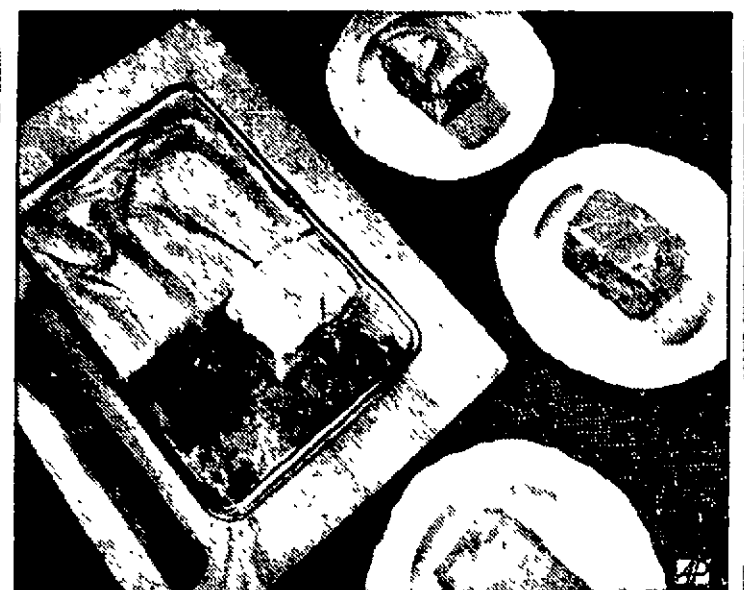

Hazel eyes—Powder with green pigment in it, lipstick with some yellow in it (they do come that way), light brown eye-shadow, and rouge with as much golden overtone to it as you can discover.

Brown and black eyes—(Black eyes usually are not pure black, but are very dark brown, so they're classed together)—Suntan powders, if your skin isn't too white, at least a decided rachel powder, an orange lipstick, dark brown eye-shadow, and rouge with lots of orange in it.

The beauty salon with all these ideas says blue eyes are sparkling; brown eyes are mysterious; gray eyes are dreamer's eyes; hazel eyes are mischievous.

Take a look at yours, and see if you agree.

Don't Forget Sour Cream In Planning Sweet Foods

FOR CHILLY WEATHER
Just add a mug of hot cider to this mocha-frosted spice cake and you have the perfect repast for a pleasant fire-side evening.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Until recently housewives and cooks from abroad have been the only ones to appreciate the wonders sour cream can perform.

They add sour cream to their favorite meat and vegetable dishes—to say nothing of their soups.

Sour cream often gives baked foods a tenderness and richness that sweet cream cannot impart.

Sour cream is one of the principal ingredients in many delicious cookies, gingerbreads, cakes, waffles, cornbreads and nut and fruit loaves. And it gives a tasty tartness to meat or fish loaves.

Keeping a Supply

Many housewives keep a jar in the kitchen especially for sour cream. If you don't use it often, however, you can get it at your grocer's or make it yourself. Add two tablespoons of vinegar to a cup of sweet cream and keep it well covered in a moderate temperature until it has soured. If mold forms, remove it at once.

Here's a good recipe for delicious sour cream biscuits:

Mix two cups of flour with one teaspoon of soda and a fourth of a teaspoon of salt. Cut in three tablespoons of butter and slowly mix in about three-fourths of a cup of sour cream.

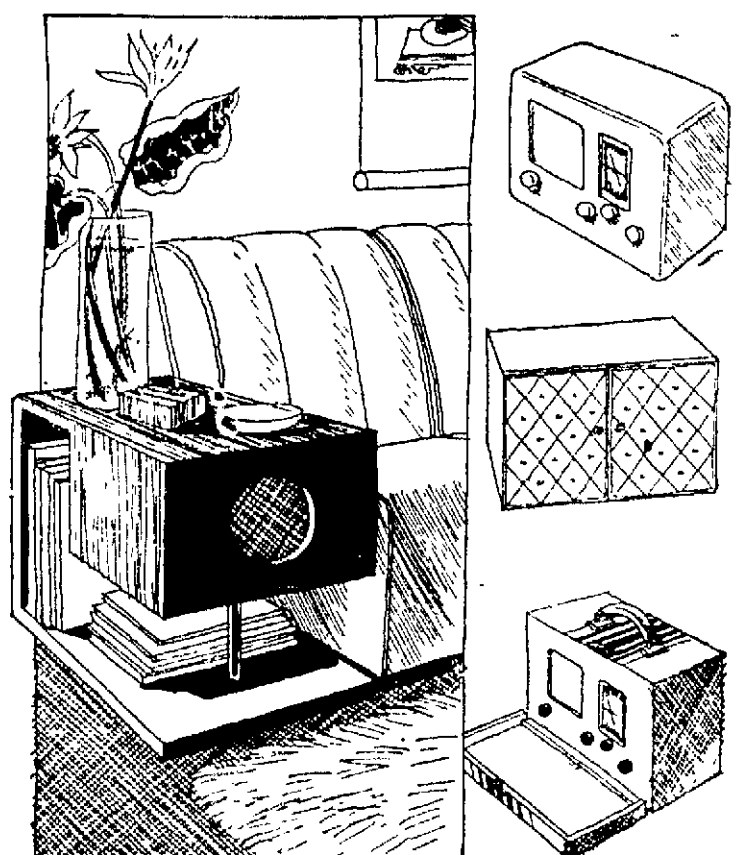

When a soft dough forms knead it for two minutes. Then cut out biscuits and bake them in the regular manner.

Mushroom Soup

There's nothing quite so luscious as sour cream and mushroom soup to start a meal. Add two cups of sliced mushrooms to

Radio Designers Creating Sets Notable For Beauty

FOR EYES AS WELL AS EARS
New radio sets show improvements in design. End table sets are notable as end tables. The top one at the right is a model of simplicity; below it is a rooster gem and the bottom one is a youngster's pride in striped airplane cloth.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine For The Freeman

At last, radios are really good to look at. Not so long ago manufacturers thought we judged the value of a radio by the space it took up and its beauty by the number of doodads carved on the cabinet.

But the new models are really designed. They not only fit into any style of interior, but some also are treasures in themselves.

The new table models, for instance, not only are compact but truly decorative. One, in soft brown antique leather, with simple hand tooling and small brass studs, looks almost like an heirloom chest or writing case. Others are formal eighteenth-century—one with a Chinese design painted on oyster white, lacquered or black, and another, of ivory leather, has neat horizontal lines of gold tooling and insets of carved carnelian jade.

One model in blond or dark walnut, or all white, has a beautifully simple design—no trimming and dial knobs perfectly tailored.

Radio end tables in modern designs admit they are radios, but not conspicuously, and their tops are at convenient chair-aim level. Other modern radios are built into bookcase units.

The new portable radios, for alternating or direct current, are at home anywhere. For the man's room, one comes in top grain yellow cowhide or in natural studs, looks almost like an heirloom chest or writing case. Others are formal eighteenth-century.

Now Is Time To Buy Lamb

Ithaca, Oct. 9. High quality lamb is now coming on the market and is a good buy at the present time, according to Professor R. B. Hinman of the department of animal husbandry at Cornell University.

He says the fall marketings of lamb are large and that greater stability of lamb prices is seen than in the past. During the past five years, individual use of lamb throughout the country increased 12 per cent, as compared with the previous five years.

He says the use of lamb is on the increase. "Lamb is becoming more popular because housewives have learned that it has a delicious flavor, that it combines well with other foods, and that all cuts can be prepared by the two easiest methods—roasting and broiling."

The Cornell University man also attributed the present-day popularity of lamb to the fact that so many new cuts have been introduced in recent years, and that its food value is recognized as high.

BUSINESS GIRLS: You Can Dress Smartly on Limited Means By Planning Your Wardrobe Carefully

WORK AND PLAY

This is a dress the business girl can wear at the office and then to dinner and the movies. Neckline pipings of gold kid and a gilt belt buckle brighten it. The off-the-face wine felt hat is an adaptation of Schiaparelli's Merry Widow chapeau.

Coat to Handkerchief

That is the counsel of Mrs. Dorothy Anderson, director of Business Girls' Shops in one of Manhattan's largest department stores (John Wanamaker's).

STRICTLY BUSINESS

This was voted the perfect dress for business at the Business Girls' Fashion Show presented recently by John Wanamaker's in New York. It is made of black alpaca, designed with close-fitting bodice buttoning up the front and is finished with pique collar and cuffs. Tucks give a slight fullness to the skirt. All three of these costumes were assembled by Wanamaker's.

PURELY PLEASURE

A shimmering gold belt studded with colored stones adds the right touch of evening glamour to this dinner frock of black crepe which the business girl can wear on many occasions. Its simplicity of design makes it wearable with many accessories.

Hats Off the Face

The fashion world votes black the smartest color for the business girl's coat, although brown, green and gray are good. The favorite is a slim, fitted wool finished with revers of Persian lamb.

Spain Charges Italy Will Use Gas

intervention in Spain on behalf of the insurgents whose regime they recognized as a de facto government.

"A Mistake"
The British admiralty's surprising about face on the question of the reported torpedo attack off the Spanish eastern coast on the British destroyer Basilisk caused widespread comment.

Some quarters were sure the admiralty had been quite convinced that an attack had been made by a private submarine when it issued its original statement to the effect last Monday. They found it difficult to credit the statement that a "mistake" had been discovered now.

It was even suggested, after the admiralty's corrective announcement last night, that the official reason for the denial might be because the navy had received damning proof of the attacker's identity and wished to hush it up. An admiralty spokesman later admitted depth bombs had been dropped by the Basilisk but suggested a "mistake undoubtedly occurred."

"We cannot tell you what it was that appeared to be a torpedo. It might have been a porpoise but we really cannot say," he said. The London owners of the 1-Rio-Don freighter Cervantes confirmed today the vessel had escaped damage in a bomb attack by an insurgent plane while enroute to Tarragona, on Spain's eastern coast. Five thousand persons at Scarborough heard Chamberlain refer indirectly to the United States "clarion call" as an end to the diplomatic isolation of that nation.

"Hitherto it has been assumed the United States * * * would remain content with a frankly isolationist policy," he said. As regards the Far East, authoritative sources believed Britain's hands were tied as far as anything more than energetic protests were concerned. There was little likelihood of Britain's sponsoring or even supporting a trade boycott against Japan.

Trade Balances
Figures for 1935, latest available here, show that Japan's total exports to the British empire that year were worth $76,135,000 yen ($156,016,675).

The statistics also show that Japan's 1935 imports from the British empire totaled 717,970,000 yen ($206,775,360). There was strong opposition to boycott talk from traders who already have begun to manufacture on Christmas orders from Japan, and those who have placed similar orders in Japan.

Nethertheless, unofficial nationwide demands for a boycott already are as numerous as during the 1935 sanctions period against Italy. There were some observers who feared complication from any British economic pressure on Japan might cause Japan to retaliate with attempting to seize British and Dutch possessions in the Far East.

Chinese Plan Rout of Japanese
tain-Pukow railroad in North China to Canton in South China. A Japanese embassy spokesman denied that Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander-in-chief of the Japanese Third Fleet, gave British naval authorities a guarantee that the Hankow-Canton railroad would not be bombed.

The crew of the British cruiser Capetown, 215 officers and men, stranded between Canton and Lokchong, 140 miles north on the railroad has been prevented from reaching Canton. The Capetown is bottled up in the Yangtze river and it had been reported that Hasegawa answered a British protest with a guarantee of safe train passage for the cruiser's personnel.

Hasegawa, the spokesman asserted, merely gave assurances that the specific train on which the Capetown's crew was traveling would not be bombed.

Bennett Realistic
Los Angeles, Oct. 9 (AP)—Actor Richard Bennett "does his roles very realistically, even off the stage," Mrs. Angela Bennett testified in getting a divorce. "If he decides to play a role using a gun or a dagger, he carries it through to the end and I have scars to show the results." The veteran actor once stabbed her with a nail and another time struck her with a pistol, Mrs. Bennett testified yesterday.

H. O. Jahn, head gardener at New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, "kissed flowers into blooming out of season. Right now, Jahn has on hand a plot of Chrysanthemums and Cyclamens in full bloom."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The stock market tried to get its teeth in a small rally today but met sufficient selling to dull its appetite.

Aircraft, reflecting a big government order for Boeing, pushed up at the start, along with steel, coppers, motors and specialties. Early gains of fractions to more than a point, however, were shaken off in many cases later and, while moderate advances were retained by numerous favorites, a wide assortment of losers was in evidence at the close.

Transfers were around 450,000 shares. Some cheer was found in the remarks of Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. regarding the lack of any good reason for the recent market relapse, although it was debatable whether the thought stimulated buying to any great extent.

Most foreign markets were closed but securities weakened in Amsterdam. Grain and cotton futures did better. Other commodities were mixed. Bonds also were uneven.

Chrysler was sluggish notwithstanding estimates from trade quarters that the company's third quarter sales were some 30 per cent over those in the same 1936 period.

Narrow to down a point or so were General Motors, Crucible Steel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Macy, International Harvester, Deere, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Crown Cork, Allis Chalmers, Hercules Powder, Dow Chemical, Borg Warner, Kennecott, International Nickel, Consolidated Edison, Goodrich and Goodyear.

Chinese Plan Rout of Japanese

tain-Pukow railroad in North China to Canton in South China. A Japanese embassy spokesman denied that Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander-in-chief of the Japanese Third Fleet, gave British naval authorities a guarantee that the Hankow-Canton railroad would not be bombed.

The crew of the British cruiser Capetown, 215 officers and men, stranded between Canton and Lokchong, 140 miles north on the railroad has been prevented from reaching Canton. The Capetown is bottled up in the Yangtze river and it had been reported that Hasegawa answered a British protest with a guarantee of safe train passage for the cruiser's personnel.

Hasegawa, the spokesman asserted, merely gave assurances that the specific train on which the Capetown's crew was traveling would not be bombed.

Bennett Realistic
Los Angeles, Oct. 9 (AP)—Actor Richard Bennett "does his roles very realistically, even off the stage," Mrs. Angela Bennett testified in getting a divorce. "If he decides to play a role using a gun or a dagger, he carries it through to the end and I have scars to show the results." The veteran actor once stabbed her with a nail and another time struck her with a pistol, Mrs. Bennett testified yesterday.

H. O. Jahn, head gardener at New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, "kissed flowers into blooming out of season. Right now, Jahn has on hand a plot of Chrysanthemums and Cyclamens in full bloom."

Wells' Bail Set at $7,500; Is Held on Mann Act Charge

Otis Wells, also known as LeRoy Wells, was picked up by federal authorities and held for action in district court at Boston Friday on a charge of violation of the Mann White Slave Act. Bail was fixed at $7,500. Wells at the time of his arrest at Boise, Idaho, was Hazel Tindale, whom it is alleged he took from Springfield, Mass., to Idaho. Wells, a native of Ulster county, is wanted in Ulster county for violation of parole and also to answer to a bench warrant which charges forgery, third degree, alleged to have taken place on April 23, 1932.

For some time the authorities have been looking for Wells and it was known he was in the west but his residence there had not been disclosed. Wells was arrested in 1932 and indicted by the September grand jury that year under three indictments, each containing two counts, charging forgery, third degree. When arraigned in county court before County Judge Frederick C. F. E. W. Darrow not guilty and F. E. W. Darrow appeared for him. Later in November he pleaded guilty to one of the charges and was sentenced to five years in Clinton State Prison at Dannemora.

After serving a part of his sentence he was paroled but later he was sought for violation of the parole when it was charged he had left New York state in violation of the parole. Probation Officer William Locke has been looking for Wells for that violation and Sheriff Molyneux has also been on the trail of Wells in order to serve the bench warrant which charges forgery.

The five year term in Clinton Prison was on his plea of guilty to indictment No. 1950. At the same time the grand jury reported a dismissal of a burglary, third degree, charge. Federal authorities allege that he took a Springfield waitress to Idaho after they had first gone to South Dakota while Wells's wife was confined to a Springfield, Mass., hospital.

Wells, 30 years old, is a former resident of the Vio. With the Tindale woman, who is 17 years old, he pleaded not guilty to a charge of conspiring to violate the Mann Act. She was held in $500 bail. At the time of his arraignment Wells gave his address as Springfield, Mass., as did Miss Tindale and Wells denied he was married.

The arrest of the pair was made at Boise, Idaho, and a Federal marshal brought the couple to Boston for arraignment. The hearing was set down for October 29.

Snow Squalls Hit Mountain Areas
Colder weather has followed the summer temperature of earlier in the week. On Friday there was a sudden change from summer to winter in the Catskills. At Tannersville snow fell steadily for two hours and the ground was white with it. Heavy snow squalls were also reported at Hunter, Lexington, Prattville, Halcott, Windham Valley, Pine Hill and many other places in the mountain area. A resident of Lexington reported that Friday there was a heavy snow storm there and flakes as big as nickels were falling. The storm lasted for more than an hour but the snow melted quickly.

Humming Bird Halts Tunnel Construction
Los Angeles.—The Little Dutch boy who saved Holland from sea inundation by sticking his finger in a leak in the dike has been matched here by a humming bird which has delayed the construction of an essential tunnel in the new metropolitan water district project.

The humming bird built its nest on the knot of a guy rope used in the tunnel construction and started in to raise a family of hummers. Work was ordered delayed on that part of the project until mother humming bird had hatched her brood.

St Labor Heads Praise Wicks, Who Presents His Proof

Charges on the part of Democratic candidate for local public office that he is not a friend to labor, were answered today by Senator Arthur H. Wicks for the press when he presented an inquiring reporter with the following letter from the Federation of Labor.

"There's no better proof than the record," said the senator as he showed the letter received from the state labor body.

The Letter
Albany, September 21, 1937.
Hon. Arthur H. Wicks, Kingston, N. Y.
Dear Senator:

Yankees Take 1-0 Lead in First in 4th Series Gam

By ALAN GOULD
Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Giants, on the verge of being knocked down for the fourth straight time and "out," planned their hopes of prolonging the World Series today on Carl Hubbell, veteran screwball southpaw.

Hubbell, driven from the box in the opening game, was opposed by Irving (Bump) Hadley as the world champion Yankees aimed at scoring their fourth "slam" in baseball's post-season battle. The Giants made one switch in their lineup, in quest of more punch. Han Leiber replaced Lou Chiozza in centerfield. Hank Danning remained behind the plate because his swollen throwing hand was less serious than Captain Gus Mancuso's fractured little finger. Mancuso suffered the injury in the second game.

An estimated 35,000 fans, bundled in furs, topcoats and blankets typical for football weather, were scattered through the stands at game-time. The batting order:
Yankees
Crossetti, ss.
Rofe, 3b.
DiMaggio, cf.

Umpires: Stewart (N. L.) at plate; Ormsby (A. L.) at first base; Barr (N. L.) at second base; Basil (A. L.) at third base. First inning Yankees: Crossetti holsted to Whitehead. Rofe dropped a hit in centerfield and ran all the way to third. Ripple made spectacular catch of DiMaggio's smash to bullpen. Rofe scored easily. Gehrig fouled to McCarthy.

One run, one hit, no errors, none left.
First Inning Giants: Moore flied to Hoag. Bartell popped to Dickey. Ott lined a single to right. Crossetti threw out Ripple. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

According to the story as gathered by the state troopers, Mrs. Van Etten had opened the rear door of the sedan to throw out a cigarette when she felt the car's engine stall. She was first taken to her home and later to the hospital.

Two other women, Mrs. Dorothy Latimer and Miss Margaret Stickle, both of 551 Main street, Poughkeepsie, were also riding in the sedan at the time.

Drive Launched to Spur Use of Fruit in Austria
Vienna.—An average yearly consumption of 200 pounds of fruit by every person is declared as a desirable goal by Austrian physicians. Now about 80 pounds are being eaten by the average Austrian in a year.

Even this amount cannot be furnished by Austria's fruit growers, as $3,000,000 worth of fruit is imported from abroad, mostly from Italy. Austria possesses about 20,000 fruit trees, or three to every inhabitant.

To increase this number in proportion to the rising demand is the object of the recently organized Austrian Fruit Growers' association, which advocates the importation of healthy and suitable trees from abroad, particularly from California and Florida.

Keresman Ready With Stellar Bill For Police Ball

President Peter Keresman of the Kingston Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, and general chairman of the Police Ball, to be held at the municipal auditorium, Tuesday night, October 12, has announced one of the most varied and attractive programs of entertainment ever featured at a social event of the kind.

"We have tried to out-do ourselves in the way of entertainment," said President Keresman, "and those who attend our ball for the benefit of the pension fund will find a full evening's enjoyment, whether they dance or not."

Every act on the bill of entertainment has held a featured spot on some program or other, says Harry Shea, New York theatrical agent, as he called special attention to Harry Foster Welch, featured as "Popeye the Sailor," famous cartoon character who has been a hit on radio, screen and stage.

Shea's press sheet heralds Welch as the man of a thousand voices, who can imitate musical instruments and about everything under the sun that makes a noise. Bugs Baer called him the greatest single man entertainer in vaudeville.

Welch has played in all of the leading theatres of the country, and was at the Billmore Hotel for two solid months. During the past year he was on the "Believe It or Not" Ripley program and the Shell Oil radio broadcast.

Other choice bits of the program will be Billy Wells and the four Fays in "From Soup to Nuts" recently with "Revue of Tomorrow."

Conrad and Emberson, "Lords of Laughter," in a mirth provoking program that surpasses all.

Four Roberts, acrobats and jugglers supreme.

Gale and Carson, comedians extraordinary.

The Future Stars, an array of youthful proteges introducing the various popular styles of dancing of the current times.

Selden and Eddler, "Rolling Home from the Party," a novelty specialty.

Jay Johnson, singing master of ceremonies, who played at the Italian Village of the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, for 26 weeks.

Those who have not procured tickets for the ball, can do so by stopping any patrolman. They all have them to sell.

Accompaniment for the entertainment, and music for assembly dancing, will be furnished by Jack Linton's Clinton Ford Orchestra.

Troubles always seem to learn to add and multiply a lot easier than they do to subtract.

Buffalo Bill was said to have killed 4,280 buffaloes in 18 months.

If one could only trade in the worn out body for a newer model.

Man—So the banker put you back on your feet again?

Friend—Yes.

Man—Did he give you another loan?

Friend—No, he foreclosed on my car.

Perhaps we shouldn't take it too seriously when we reflect that not a few persons cut short their eats in order to buy gasoline. The general tendency is for folks to eat too much anyway.

Mother—Junior, what do you mean talking to your sister like that?

Junior—We're playing I'm a traffic officer.

A local police officer says he'd like to see drinking drivers given a barrel of whiskey each, a car apiece and free use of the highways from which all sober motorists are barred.

His idea is that the drunk would soon kill each other off, which may or may not be true.

This scribe would also like to try out his temperance panacea which in brief is this: Prescribe for and see that each toper has a quart of booze before breakfast, two quarts soon after, a gallon before dinner, two gallons later.

When and if the patient recovers consciousness, repeat the treatment until a cure is effected or else—! Would it work, you say? Well, what does!

Officer—Hey! Pull over to the curb, lady. Do you know you were doing 75?

Glady—Isn't it marvelous!—and I just learned to drive yesterday.

The motorist may be most at fault at the street corner but it is the heedless pedestrian who suffers. There are many things in life that way.

Now and then you see a man driving so carefully that you know the car is entirely paid for.

An English tourist was on his first visit to Niagara Falls, and a guide was trying to impress him with their magnitude.

Guide—Grand!

The visitor was silent.

Guide—Millions of gallons in a minute!

Tourist—How many in a day?

Guide—Oh, billions and billions.

Tourist (looking at the falls carefully, and then in a very calm voice)—Runs all night, too, I suppose?

What Women Escape: Statisticians estimate that the average man shaves twenty square miles of face during a lifetime.

Read it or not: A clergyman cannot perform the marriage ceremony for himself.

Political Speaker—I'm pleased to see such a dense crowd here tonight.

Voice from the Rear—Don't be too pleased. We're not all dense.

Bouquets If you have any praise to use then let this word be said, Give your bouquets to the living, keep your brickbats for the dead.

What's the use of wounding others with your brickbats sent in showers.

Don't wait until a man is dead to cover him with flowers.

Give your bouquets to the living, say a loving word today.

Cheer a lonely heart with kindness, help a pilgrim on the way.

You will have a sense of pleasure when a hungry soul you've fed.

Your bouquets will cheer the living, brickbats cannot hurt the dead.

Manager—What are you doing with your foot on the desk?

Clerk—I've lost my eraser and I'm using my rubber heel instead.

Broadway: "The Prisoner of Zenda." Anthony Hope's immortal romantic story of adventure and sacrifice against the backdrop of royalty returns to the screen once again with the dashing and handsome Ronald Colman.

Colman starred. There is no story that could possess such motion picture appeal as this tale of intrigue for it possesses a pretty if frustrated romance, a wild scheme of revenge by one of fiction's most lovable but crafty rascals plus adventure, humor and bravery in big and effective doses.

And the show has been created with rich and elaborate backgrounds, fine direction, splendid camera effects and well worded dialogue. It tells the story of a drunken and slapping king who retains his throne when an adventurer appears who is a dead likeness to the king.

All unknown, this man plays a lone game against the trickery of the king's court and saves the throne for the woman he loves out cannot have. Madeline Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. are featured in a cast of hundreds.

A four star adventure hit, well worded seeing.

Kingston: "100 Men and a Girl." Bright with melody, comedy and charm, the latest starring vehicle of little Deanna Durbin is a trite but effective little story set to sentiment and music with supporting cast of unusual talent.

There is little doubting the ability of Miss Durbin's voice and she is at her best in the scenes where she can flood the theatre with song. Her supporting cast includes such notables as Leopold Stokowski, Adolphe Menjou, Mischa Auer and Alice Brady. Here is melodic and airy entertainment of real worth plus some of the funniest comedy antics ever filmed. A don't miss attraction, recommended to everyone.

Orpheum: "Riding On Air" and "Mystery of the Hooded Horseman." Joe E. Brown goes back to airplanes in the first of the features at the downtown theatre and the show is in the usual Joe E. Brown tradition which means slapstick comedy and gags all thrown together.

"Mystery of the Hooded Horseman" is the other effort, a scary tale of a hooded rider with Tex Ritter in the starring assignment.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "A Fight to the Finish" and "Hills of Wyoming." Don Terry, Rosalind Kelth and George McKay get together with dramatic results in the opening Orpheum attraction, a story of the heartbreak and despair to be found in the big city.

"Hills of Wyoming" is the other full length offering with Bill Boyd.

Hair-raising.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Yee Moon, a 23-year-old Chinese, chose Mrs. Kiyoko Miyao's Japanese barber shop for a hair trim. A score of Mrs. Miyao's countrymen gathered and hissed. The proprietor saying Yee Moon was a steady customer, locked the front door.

Three carloads of police rescued Moon.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Dorothy Arzner is getting sick and tired of being "Hollywood's only woman director."

To women and girls everywhere she says in effect: "Come on in, the water's fine!"

Seriously, the slight, short-haired woman of the tailored suits and quiet manner is convinced that the next few years will see many more women becoming movie directors.

"Directing motion pictures," she says, "offers a fascinating career to women who are willing to devote their entire attention to studying every phase of picture-making. Direction as a profession should appeal to talented women as greatly as the law, or medicine. The courses of preparation are correspondingly long, and the rewards well worth the effort."

The Field's Wide Open

Miss Arzner herself went through a seven-year apprenticeship as secretary, script clerk, cutter and writer before she was entrusted with her first film. That was 10 years ago. Since then she has been one of the colony's leading directors, and has commanded the film work of stars from Esther Ralston and Clara Bow to the present-day luminaries, Katharine Hepburn and Joan Crawford.

There are no reasons why women should not succeed as producers and directors," she declares. "Many have earned distinction in other creative movie fields, as scenarists, costume designers, dance directors and film cutters."

Four Women Producers

Miss Arzner asks no concessions in working hours or conditions because of her sex. When doing a man's job she expects to meet the same hardships and strenuous demands of the post.

She thinks it is encouraging that, while Hollywood has had only four women producers in its history, all four have reached executive rank in recent years.

She refers to Frances Marion, the scenarist-producer, Dorothy Davenport Reid, widow of the silent film star Wallace Reid; Irene Schreck, who gained her executive training as secretary to a studio manager, and Fanchon (of Fanchon and Marco) who first directed dance numbers for films and now produces her own pictures.

Long Power. Draper, Va.—P. G. Pratt, hog hunter de luxe, didn't know his own strength. Pratt hollered mightily at a community fair hog calling contest and won first prize hands her.

Down. Then he walked two miles. There grouped at the fence, still enthralled by their master's voice, his entire parcel of pigs squealing for their distant and won first prize hands her.

College Women's Club Makes Plans For the Year

The opening fall meeting of the Kingston College Women's Club will be held on October 12 in the chapel of the Fair Street Reformed Church. This will be an open meeting and each member is privileged to bring three guests. The speaker, Dr. Herbert Strong, will address the assembly on "Revelations in the Realm of Color".

Dr. Strong has just returned from a three month trip in Burma with Dr. William Hoeb, where the two men made experiments with the ultra violet ray and the power of penetration of the respective lights into the depths of the ocean.

A diversified and interesting program has been arranged by the program committee, which consists of Mrs. J. Richard Shultz, Mrs. Gerard Holz, Mrs. Kenneth LeFever and Mrs. Kenneth Davidson. Some of the programs planned include "An Artist's Connection with Science" by Wilfred Bronson, "Modern Philosophy" by Miss Marion McIlmurray, "Syphilis and Its Control" by Dr. Elizabeth Parsons, and "More Power from the News Tower" by Frederick Snyder.

The College Women's Club numbers 95 active members and 10 associate members. The meetings will be held at the Huntington, 25 Pearl street, on the second Tuesday of each month at 8 o'clock with the exception of the two open meetings in October and May.

Mr. and Mrs. Tschirky Feted on Jubilee

Oscar of the Waldorf and his wife, Mrs. Sophie Berthel Tschirky, of New York, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Thursday evening with a gala celebration in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria. During the dinner an orchestra of 150 players played popular music of the last 50 years.

Golden snail and green ferns held soft lights which played upon rich gold plate as distinguished guests partook of a sophisticated menu and sipped rare wines and cordials.

Notables spoke vividly of Oscar's rise to fame from his boy to his extraordinary, and of his acquaintances with presidents, kings and princes.

Models dressed in costumes of 1887, soft lights and muted violins accompanied the entrance of the 200-pound wedding cake, rising on great blocks of soft glowing light.

And there was an illuminated scroll for the Tschirky's on it and the signatures of hundreds of men and women - royalty, rich folk, leaders in the arts and sciences, men and women in public life - distinguished persons who had entertained by Oscar during his fifty-four years in hotel service.

A message from the President and Mrs. Roosevelt led all the guests to bed.

Below this were the signatures of all the Presidents of the United States, from President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover, the Governor and Mrs. Lehman, the Mayor and Mrs. La Guardia, ambassadors and ministers.

Ulster Classis Welcomes Pastor

High Woods churches, to Dr. Potter, was read, found in order to be prepared and signed by the officers of Classis. Dr. Potter accepted the same and a committee was appointed and arrangements made for the service of installation of Dr. Potter as pastor of churches. This service will take place in the Mount Marion Church at the evening of Friday, October 15, at 7:45 o'clock. At this service the Rev. Irving H. Decker will preside, as the new president of Classis, and will read the text. The sermon will be preached by Dr. Seeley. The Rev. brethren Donald Boyce, of Westerlo, and Harvey B. Hoffman, of Schuylerville, are being invited to make the charges to the minister and to the congregation. Other ministers were designated to take other parts in this service.

The Revs. Harvey I. Todd and Clarence S. Howard were named as a committee to make arrangements for the year-end classis dinner. It was announced that the Rev. George Gosselink, member of this classis, serving as missionary in Arabia, would reach Ulster county in a few days, on his way, with his family, to his post of service in Arabia. The Rochester church of Accord will tender the Gosselinks a reception on the evening of October 14. The resolutions committee responded to the long and most efficient service of the late Dr. William I. Chamberlain, and presented to the Intelligencer-Ledger. The request of the county W. C. T. U. was approved that the churches of the classic co-operate in efforts being made to change the hours of the closing of places dispensing intoxicating liquors from 3 a. m. to 1 a. m.

New Paltz church was named as place of next meeting, April 19, 1938. The Rev. Irving H. Decker and Harold J. Hoffman took their places as the incoming officers of classis. Committees were appointed to serve the next year.

The ladies of the Fair Street church served a very delightful chicken dinner at noon, for which the Rev. Ben. Scholten, in a happy response, expressed the appreciation of classis. Adjournment was taken at 3 p. m. after prayer by the Rev. A. Paus.

Two Claims Heard In Easement Cases

tion by the city of its easement. Upon cross-examination it developed that Mr. Gormley believed a third of the Esopus flood waters emanated from the tunnel and because of the possibility of such floods 21 acres of bottom land which formerly was worth $150 an acre now was worth but $10 an acre and useable for pasture purposes only.

Water Limited.
It was stated that as a matter of fact the maximum the city can induce in the Esopus creek is 1,063 cubic feet per second, whereas in the 1926 flood the stream rose to 39,300 cubic feet per second and in the 1933 flood to 61,000 cubic feet per second.

Harry Snyder and Arthur Sheely testified on behalf of the city of New York as real estate experts. Mr. Snyder valued the easement of the city at $300 and Mr. Sheely at $315.

Charles W. Walton represented the claimant and Attorney Vincent G. Connelly of this city represented the city of New York.

The other claim tried was that of George Clark, who owns damaged parcel 20. The claim filed was in the amount of $1,000.

The parcel consists of a creek lot 63 in 1929 and was purchased by Mr. Clark in 1929. Mr. Clark uses the bungalow only in summer when he visits the Esopus for fishing. James A. Simpson valued the easement at $300 and Clarence Voss at $250. Walter Brooks and Chester A. Lyons on behalf of the city of New York valued the easement at $50. Charles W. Walton also represented Mr. Clark and Attorney Vincent G. Connelly represented the city of New York.

About Town Clinic Held on Friday
Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, held the third in a series of about town clinics for the prevention of diphtheria on Friday afternoon at the Excelsior House on Hurley avenue when 29 children were immunized against the disease and 18 children were vaccinated against smallpox.

Dr. Sanford said that the regular Tuesday clinic would be omitted next Tuesday as it was a legal holiday, but would be held as usual on the following Tuesday. He is now making arrangements to hold clinics in the parochial schools of the city.

KEEP YOUR YOUTHFUL CHARMS TO HOLD ADMIRATION

Important Tips for Fall Grooming

If you're in the interesting mature years, it's your day. The new clothes are for you. The new subdued make-up brings out your subtle charm.

But—there's one but. If you don't protect your youthful contours, your skin and hair against the season's toll—you'll look frankly, unattractively middle-aged instead of interesting.

So look in the mirror. What has the happy-go-lucky outdoor time done to your looks?

At your chin line is there a threat of a pouch or a sag? Strengthen your muscles, get a clean, lovely line by doing this simple exercise.

Lower your head until the chin rests on the chest. Now throw it gently back until it's almost between the shoulders. Then turn your head to right and to left. Your bust—is it firm, high, rounded? Tone up the muscles. Stand erect, hold both arms before you at shoulder level. Then vigorously swing your arms together as they form a figure 8 lying on its side.

Next, your hair? Did the summer sun dry it? Is it dull? Massage your scalp, bring back the luster. Try a new hair-do, too.

Nothing "dates" a woman more than sticking to a style too long. Is your skin dry, too? Has it too little of the priceless oil which helps to keep wrinkles away? Put it on before you bathe, the steam helps your skin absorb it.

Maybe you have large hips. Or your hands look old. Or aching feet rob you of youthful buoyancy. In our 40-page booklet, BEAUTY FOR THE MATURE WOMAN, is a simple program to correct defects, to keep young and vital, charming!

Send 15c for our booklet, BEAUTY FOR THE MATURE WOMAN, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of book-let.

It is the details of workmanship that often make the difference between good furniture and inferior pieces. And if you know what some of these details are, you can judge as to the quality of the furniture that you are buying.

Beer Jackets For Sports

New York (AP) Beer jackets make smart additions to the fall sports wardrobes of the younger set. Inspired by the jackets worn by the students of a famous eastern men's college, they are square box designs with roomy patch pockets. Many are made of corduroy and have slacks and skirts to match.

At one time members sold newspapers to raise money. The fund has grown slowly until now there is over $1,000. The main obstacle to the building of the cabin is the finding of a suitable location. NEED FILE ONLY ONE SOCIAL SECURITY FORM Importance was attached today by John Form, manager of the Kingston Field Office of the Social Security Board, to the announcement of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that employers subject to tax under Title VIII of the Social Security Act will be required to file only one information return for the period July 1 to December 31, 1937. This is the return on Forms SS-2 and SS-2a on which the employer reports to the Collector of Internal Revenue the amount of wages paid to each employee. Mr. Form stated these returns are used both for verifying the accuracy of the monthly Federal Social Security tax returns and as a basis for crediting wages to the account of employees in the Federal Old-Age Benefits program. This announcement is of interest to the hundreds of thousands of employers who are required to file this type of return, said Mr. Form. Instead of requiring a return for the current quarter which ends September 30, and another return for the quarter ending December 31, the employers will make one six-month return, which will be filed with the Collector on or before January 31, 1938.

It was emphasized that the change in the filing period for these information returns will not alter the filing date for the tax returns on Form SS-1 which must continue to be made by employers each month, and that delinquency penalties are being asserted when employers fail to file the monthly tax returns on time.

It was also pointed out that information return Form SS-2 calls for wage data only from the first day of the quarter in which the employee dies or attains age 65, but that in view of the authorization of the six month information return period, Mr. Form added that every employer filing a Form
